I appreciate that everyone needs to differentiate themselves in business, but that website makes me run and hide. Awful, just awful.

It's about the most intelligently designed website on the internet.

Clearly I'm missing something about website design, but if something is bad enough that a potential customer refuses to use it (that'll be me), in what way does that show intelligent design?

Just put a proposal through for one, let's see what happens.

I assume it's just some method of getting more traffic to the site. Bit silly though!

If it's a joke I'll have to make do with a Reliant Robin at £155.98 pm.

If it is true I could be tempted away from my company car and run one of these instead!

I went elsewhere to do a deal as i couldn't be doing with the website.I cannot be the only one...

Interesting response from Ling about my proposal:

Gaz,

Hellloooo Pistonheads!

You are a ~~fake~~kwit. You are just proposing yourself for finance on this car to generate content for your Pistonheads post, trying to waste my time. Nit.

As you are doing this in public and it's a false finance proposal as a sort of test of me and my beautiful website that all web-people are jealous of, I think we should all front up with this info and publish everything online... eh? Trust you would have no objection to your stuff all being made public? That's fine then. I checked your credit and you clearly can't afford the DeLorean. Shame. You move house too much. Good job you entered real info. But, helpfully, I'll submit it to finance and we can see what happens. I'll let you know then we can publicly discuss your credit pass/fail on Pistonheads, can we? After all, you are doing this for the benefit of the forum I think? 😊

Look forward to your follow up post on Pistonheads, saying how offensive and horrific I am hehehe. I shouldn't be too cruel to you though, because you are clearly one of the more intelligent members.

Make sure you include all this reply (in full) on the forum, because if you edit it then I will get someone else to publish it.

You are a donkey-brain timewaster (but then you are a "web designer" in Shrewsbury, eh?) 😊

Do you want a PDF of a Fiat Panda (Mk2)??? Or a collectors badge? Happy to oblige with a little toy car to keep you going.

Next!

Lots of love,
Ling Valentine

(and yes, this is unedited)

Oddly enough, if this is a genuine deal I would have gone ahead with it. Significantly less chance of that now.

Someone spotted this ad last week, they are brand new, albeit built from 30yr old parts that have never been used. Metallic paint on a DeLorean?

That website is horrendous though, intelligently designed by some monkeys with a typewriter by the looks of it.

Interesting response, Ling.

Level with me: Is this a genuine lease deal, or not? Because if it is, I am interested in it (and can quite easily afford it, thank you very much.)

If it isn't, is this not pretty much false advertising?

My post on PH doesn't mean I'm wasting your time, it just means I'm surprised to see the DMC-12 available for lease. Although of course, even if it is a genuine deal, I'm far less likely to go ahead with it now that you've called me a "feet on a kwit."

Ling seems to be a deeply unsavoury character. She(?) came onto another motoring forum a few years ago to tell everyone how much she hated them and generally be a PITA. IIRC she got banned.

I guess it's the same school of running a business as the rude chinese waiters in the West End that everyone like going back to so much.
